REPORT OF THE SCHOOL BOARD

OF THE TOWN OF DUBLIN, N. H., FOR THE YEAR END-ING FEBRUARY 15, 1897.

This seventy-fifth annual report of our school embraces the first and second terms of the past year. The report required by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, August 1, embraced the last term of 1895 and the first term of 1896.

The town appropriated at the annual March meeting, twelve hundred dollars for the support of schools. Twenty-five weeks divided into two terms have been held in each of the five school houses. The prevailing epidemic of measles in the spring caused many unavoidable absences during the first term. Sickness in one or two families during the second term prevented the usual constant attendance of some of the scholars. With these exceptions the attendance throughout the town has been good.

TEACHERS.

Eight different teachers have been employed during the year. All were well qualified for their duties and were fortunate in awakening a good degree of interest on the part of their pupils in the studies pursued.

DISCIPLINE.

Teachers differ in their ideas in regard to what constitutes good order in a school. The order in the schools was satisfactory with one exception. In this case after a friendly consultation of members of the school board with the teacher, the discipline of the school improved to a good degree of excellence ; showing that the teacher had much influence with her pupils and that the scholars were disposed to do right. Self government is the great end that school government should ever aim to secure. Good behavior is that property of conduct which indicates a purpose to do what ought to be done.

TEXT BOOKS.

Milne's Elements of Arithmetic, as a primary book, was introduced at the commencement of the first term. Raub's Lessons in English, and Practical English Grammar have also taken the place of Swinton's. Since the close of the last term we have exchanged the Barnes' histories which have not been used for several terms for twenty copies of Fiske's History of the United States, a book of high standard authority. The text books with very few exceptions have been properly used and reasonably cared for by the scholars of this town.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The large number of classes in our ungraded schools is always a hindrance to good results. Scholars often take studies for which they are not prepared by a thorough knowledge of lower branches. This is a waste of both the pupils' and teacher's time. All work should be done with reference to the results to be accomplished. There is not enough teaching in many of our schools. Too often children are hurried through their recitations, and then without being directed by good teaching to the knowledge they are to seek in the next lesson they are left to commit to memory simply the words found in the book. This condition of our schools is not the fault of the teachers, who on account of too many classes, are obliged to hurry from one recitation to another, but of our ungraded system. The Cheshire County School Board Association have formulated a course of study for ungraded schools, which it is hoped may in a measure lessen these disadvantages.

PATRIOTISM.

Memorial day exercises were held in all our schools. Patriotism is the love of one's country. An intelligent patriotism is a product of education and not of the instinct. It seeks and tries to promote the highest good of society. It should be cultivated in the schools. The young should know as much as possible of the institutions and history of our country. A knowledge of the heroic deeds of the founders of our free government and of those who have preserved it through all its subsequent perils, will awaken in their minds that love of country which is one of the noblest virtues.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

The injurious effects of alcoholic stimulants and of narcotics have been conscientiously taught by the teachers in the several schools; mostly by oral instruction. A sound body is a most important condition of sound morals. Disease may be the occasion of all forms of intemperance. A natural appetite demands simply a proper amount of nutritious food; it does not call for stimulants or narcotics. Chastity, moderation and temperance refer to that self control which it is the province of a good education to produce.

CONCLUSION.

Teachers should have a good knowledge of the human nature of their pupils. The best way to crowd bad thoughts out of a youthful mind is to crowd in good ones. The love of truth is a cardinal virtue. It is of the highest importance that the teacher be a truthful person. The young are influenced by living examples, rather than by precept and argument. They are inclined to imitate those whom they love and respect. It is necessary therefore that the teachers of youth should be examples of good behavior, politeness and good manners; conscientiously avoiding all things that exhibit a want of good taste and of intelligent refinement.

REPORT OF TRUSTEES OF APPLETON FUND.

A term of high school, under the instruction of Alfred T. Hawksworth of Peterboro', commenced Jan. 6, 1896, and continued ten weeks. The time of holding this school was changed from autumn to winter, as an experiment, and the change proved highly satisfactory to all concerned. There were in attendance this term twenty-three different scholars, and all but two of these continued to attend until the close of the school, which has been unusual in previous terms; we think this is praiseworthy and deserves special mention.

The closing examination showed that it had been under the instruction of a teacher well qualified for so responsible a position, that good order prevailed, which is essential to success in any school, and that another successful term had been added to the list.

The teacher was in earnest in his efforts to keep a good school, faithful in its management, and labored for the progress and success of his scholars, and gave general satisfaction.

The scholars, also, are deserving of commendation for the interest, zeal and attention shown in their several studies, and in their punctual attendance.
